

Our Great City

Our great City has a tumultuous beat,
With the Shard scraping the sky and the Thames at our feet,
London's Eye watches over us all,
From the Globe Theatre to the Cathedral of Saint Paul,
Tree branches beckon towards Hyde Park,
As the Big Ben strikes for all to hark,

Our great City isn't all about sights,
The City is working every day and every night,
London is a huge multicultural stage,
A curtain rising for a new age,
The City is a canvas, spectral colours paint a scene,
People stroll by as they take part in daily routine,

The Greenwich Meridian is the source of all our time,
Recording present day lives, London in its prime,
The Museum of London is a record of our past,
A place where all memories are stored and kept to last,
For London I'm not sure what the future will hold,
But I know our great City will prosper as events unfold.
