Subject: Chicago Booth application for a late-night alcohol license

THIS IS AN EXTERNAL EMAIL

To whom it may concern.

I wish to raise an objection to this application. I am a resident within the Barts Square development and our apartment is directly by Middlesex Passage which would be a route to the nearby tube stations. The late-night consumption of alcohol by students will undoubtedly lead to high noise levels and potentially rowdy and anti-social behaviour. Noise amplifies in the development, especially in the Passage, and the comings and goings of late-night revellers together with the mess they would leave behind would be to the detriment of the many residents of Barts Square and surrounding properties.

I have concerns that the granting of this license and the increased social activity would put increased pressure on the already stretched policing, as well as the additional costs for the City of London Council for the inevitable additional cleaning requirements.

It is worrying that the application is for the building and therefore would open up the possibility that a future business could inherit the licence and create a nightclub that could bring additional disturbance.

I would be grateful if you would consider these points when determining this application.

Yours faithfully

Phil Smith
